

If you and your partner have children, the Arrangements for Children plan must be submitted with your separation application.

It is important to be as detailed as possible to avoid any misinterpretation.

The Arrangements for Children is an official template which contains 4 main items to be completed for each of your children:

1

Current arrangements

- Where they live, who with and who looks after them.
- The school that they are attending, or if they are working, their employer.
- Who is supporting them.
- Any current access arrangements.

2

Proposed arrangements post separation

- Where they will live, who with and who will look after them.
- The school they will attending, or if they are working, their employer.
- Who will be supporting them.

3

A list of any chronic illness or disabilities your children may have

4

If your children are under the care of any welfare officer

- Beginning date of care, expected length.
- Reasoning for circumstances.

The Arrangements for Children must be signed in front of the Commissioner of Oaths.

If you and your partner agree to the Arrangements for Children, you may both sign. If not, you must file separate Arrangements for Children and let the court decide.
